Andermatt and the Alpine passes

A historic connection

A quick look at the history books makes it clear that the Alpine passes played a significant role in the development of Andermatt and the Ursern Valley.

The first settlers came from the east across the Oberalp Pass, the easiest of the passes to tackle. Later, in about 1200 AD, settlers from Valais in the west arrived in the valley. Even today, the Oberalp and Furka passes constitute an important connection between east and west Switzerland. The Gotthard Pass grew in importance only after the wild and precipitous Schöllenen Gorge was made passable, and was no longer an insurmountable obstacle for mule drivers. In about 1230 AD, the first wooden bridge, known as the Teufelsbrücke (Devil's Bridge), was built across the Reuss river.

During the Middle Ages, the Gotthard quickly transformed into one of shortest and quickest Alpine crossings on the north-south axis.

The Gotthard Pass was further developed between 1818 and 1830, and the first Gotthard Post mail coaches were driven along it. The Furka and Oberalp passes followed later on. Andermatt flourished as a holiday destination, health resort and trade location. The first car is said to have reached the top of the Gotthard Pass as early as 1895. In 1925, the first steam train made its way across the Furka Pass.

The passes became increasingly important in military terms as part of the Swiss National Redoubt strategy between the first and second world wars. Numerous fortifications were built around the passes, parts of which can still be visited today.

Historic experiences

TIP

Travel along the passes and into the past. Historic structures can be found in a number of areas. Make a visit to the Sasso San Gottardo, a former fortification on the Gotthard Pass. Head out on a nostalgic steam train on the Furka Pass, or take a trip into days gone by in the historic horse-drawn carriages of the Gotthard Post.

Oberalp Pass

2046 m a.s.l. / Andermatt - Sedrun

Oberalp Pass

2046 m a.s.l. / Andermatt - Sedrun

The Oberalp Pass leads from Andermatt through the Surselva region to Disentis. The Oberalp is the easiest pass to cross, which is why it was favoured by the first settlers on their way to Andermatt.

The gentle climb from Andermatt up to the summit of the pass at 2044 m a.s.l. offers some spectacular views over the whole of the Ursern Valley and the Gemsstock. The Matherhorn Gotthard railway line also travels over the top of the pass. It's here that the Glacier Express panorama train reaches the highest point on its journey from St Moritz to Zermatt.

The turquoise waters of Lake Oberalp make it hard not to linger a while. Go for a walk, a short hike, or fish for fresh trout in the lake.

The top of the pass is also home to the only lighthouse in the Alps – and the highest in the world. The replica lighthouse stands as a symbol of the source of the Rhine, which lies nearby. The original lighthouse is situated at the mouth of the Rhine near Rotterdam.

On the Graubünden side, the road down is a little more winding as it passes the little village of Tschamut and carries on through Sedrun and on to Disentis. It also marks your arrival in a new language region. The Surselva region is predominantly Romansch speaking, and offers a host of culinary delights.

Visit the source of the Rhine TIP

It's a 90-minute hike from the Oberalp Pass to Lake Toma, the birthplace of the Rhine, situated at 2345 m a.s.l. Alpine roses, cuckoo flowers, gentians, leucanthemum and white cotton grass border the path and the lake – the water of which is clean enough to drink.

Furka Pass

2436 m a.s.l. / Realp - Oberwald

Furka Pass

2436 m a.s.l. / Realp - Oberwald

The Furka region's discovery as a travel paradise goes back to the 19th century and the growth of the Alpine tourism industry. Even today, the numerous historic hotel buildings along the route hark back to those times.

The Furka Pass is one of the most imposing Alpine crossings and at 2436 m a.s.l. the fourth highest pass in Switzerland. Its artfully laid-out roads – which played host to Sean Connery's James Bond in Goldfinger – connect the Ursern Valley with the Goms in canton Valais. On the way to the top of the pass, you will even get the chance to see the Furka steam train, puffing along on its historic journey. Once at the top, a breathtaking view awaits. Towards the east, your glance sweeps across the Ursern Valley and the St Gotthard Massif; to the west, it meets the 4,000 m peaks of the Valais and Bernese Alps.

The pass offers a host of possibilities for hiking, climbing and Alpine touring. Flower experts will discover a diverse world of plants, and the area is equally rich in minerals.

At the Hotel Belvédère on the Valais side, about three kilometres beneath the summit of the Furka Pass, the view opens out on to the Rhone Glacier, which has lost a little of its spectacular size as a result of global warming. In 1850, the river of ice stretched down to the valley floor below. Today, the glacier's tongue sits level with the Hotel Belvédère.

Historic Gletsch settlement TIP

Discover Gletsch, nestled in a wild mountain landscape shaped by the force of water. At the end of the 19th century, Gletsch was an important Alpine hub. With the arrival of the railway, the little village became internationally famous.

Gotthard Pass

2091 m a.s.l. / Hospental - Airolo

Gotthard Pass

2091 m a.s.l. / Hospental - Airolo

Whether it's on the historic Tremola road or the new pass road, the legendary Gotthard Pass, which connects Hospental in the Ursern Valley to Airolo in the canton of Ticino, is well worth discovering. The pass rose to prominence in the 13th century when the construction of the Teufelsbrücke made it possible to cross the wild Schöllenen Gorge below Andermatt. After the mule track was extended, the pass became one of the most significant Alpine crossings. Even today, the Gotthard, with its roads and railway tunnel, still constitutes arguably the most important north-south connection in both Switzerland and Europe.

The Gotthard Pass is a meeting point for different cultures and language regions. And it is not just the language that switches from German to Italian, even the villages and cuisine begin to sparkle with Italian charm.

The Gotthard Massif also forms a famous meteorological divide between north and south. Don't worry if it's raining as you cross the pass – sunshine is often waiting on the other side. Head out for a walk at the top of the pass and enjoy the captivating atmosphere, as you find yourself immersed in a bewitching, rocky landscape with small lakes.

At the Gotthard Hospice at the top of the pass, you can make a turn on to the historic pass road – the famous Tremola road. The journey leads over cobblestones to the south side of the Gotthard Pass. This spectacular road, with its hairpin bends snaking down to Airolo, constitutes Switzerland's longest historical monument.

Sasso San Gottardo

TIP

Concealed deep within the mountain – and top secret until only a few years ago – lies a Swiss Army artillery fortification. Today it forms part of the Sasso San Gottardo Museum. On the Metro del Sasso, the underground train, you can travel up into the fortifications and experience history at close quarters.

An aerial photograph of a winding asphalt road through a dense, lush green forest. The road curves through the trees, with a white dashed line down the center and white solid lines on the edges. The forest is composed of tall, thin evergreen trees, and the overall scene is bathed in bright, natural light.

Susten Pass

2224 m a.s.l. / Wassen - Innertkirchen

Susten Pass

2224 m a.s.l. / Wassen - Innertkirchen

The Susten Pass connects the Reuss Valley in canton Uri with the Hasli Valley in the Bernese Oberland. The structurally spectacular Susten Pass was opened only in 1945 and was the first pass road to be designed specifically for motorised traffic.

After travelling through the largely untouched and picturesque Meiental, you reach the top of the pass and go through the summit tunnel. On the Bernese side of the tunnel, there is an opportunity to stop for a rest at a large parking area and the Susten Hospiz guesthouse, situated a few metres above the pass road.

During the journey through the valley, you are met with stunning views over the Stein Glacier and the Gadmen Valley. You are immersed in a captivating landscape, ranging from lush meadows to dense, deep-green forests. After the occasional tight corner, the road leads down to the village of Gadmen and its picturesque old houses.

A number of interesting hikes await you along the route. A visit to the Trift Bridge, one of the most spectacular pedestrian suspension bridges in the Alps, is one possibility. At 100 metres high and 170 metres long, it seems to float above the area dominated by the Trift Glacier.

Even the journey there, by gondola through the gorge, is an adventure. Climbers and boulderers will find what they're looking for on the Susten Pass, too. A host of different routes and boulders make for a varied athletic challenge.

Stein Glacier

TIP

The short journey along the Stein-alp glacier trail whisks you from the busy pass roads and into a high-Alpine world; in less than two hours, you discover a huge amount of interesting information at the 15 stops along the way, and learn all about the interior and exterior life of the five kilometre river of ice.

Grimsel Pass

2165 m a.s.l. / Innertkirchen - Gletsch

The Grimsel Pass connects Meringen in the Bernese Oberland with Gletsch in Valais. The journey through the stark, wild mountain landscape is truly enthralling. Granite rocks, reservoirs and power plants shape the landscape in one of the most mineral-rich areas in the Alps. You can admire the rock crystals at the Geology Museum (Strahlermuseum) in Guttannen. It's also well worth making the trip on the Gelmerbahn, Europe's steepest funicular railway.

Nufenen Pass

2478 m a.s.l. / Airolo - Ulrichen

The road through the tranquil Bedretto Valley in Upper Valais was brought into service only in 1969. The well-developed Nufenen pass is the second highest in Switzerland after the Umbrail pass. Once you reach the top, you can admire an unforgettable panoramic view over the snow-capped mountains. And it's not just hikers and mountain bikers who prize the varied natural landscape of the Bedretto Valley – the Alpine ibexes feel very much at home here too. Keep your eyes open and you might even catch a glimpse of one from the road.

Lukmanier Pass

1914 m a.s.l. / Disentis - Biasca

The Lukmanier Pass was in brisk use back in Roman times. It leads from the monastery town of Disentis in Graubünden through Olivone to Biasca in canton Ticino. You will be greeted with the smell of fresh resin as you pass through stone pine forests along your way, and once you reach the top of the pass, you can try your luck at fishing in the deep-blue waters of the reservoir. The Lukmanier is the only one of the eight passes described here to be open in winter.

Klausen Pass

1948 m a.s.l. / Altdorf - Linthal

The Klausen Pass connects the cantons of Uri and Glarus. After passing through the beautiful Schächen Valley, you cross the summit of the pass to reach Urnerboden, the largest Alp, or mountain pasture, in Switzerland, and home to up to 1,200 cows and an Alpine dairy. Back in the 1920s and 1930s, the legendary Klausen hill climb caused a sensation that went far beyond Swiss borders. Cars and motorbikes negotiated the dirt roads of the 21.5 km course at breakneck speed, on what was then Europe's toughest mountain race.

1 Altdorf:
the Tell Monument

In 1895, a monument to William Tell was inaugurated at the foot of a 13th century former representational and residential tower. The bronze figure by Richard Kissling depicts the Swiss national hero as a bold, free and resolute man, dressed in the traditional peasant's attire.

2 Schöllenen Gorge & Teufelsbrücke

The Schöllenen Gorge, once an obstacle for mule drivers on their way south, was finally conquered in the 13th century by the construction of the legendary Teufelsbrücke (Devil's Bridge). A circular route around the gorge offers the chance to peer deep into this historic landmark.

3 Hospental Tower

The tower of the lords of Hospental is the most striking piece of architecture to be found in this municipality in the Ursern Valley. It was built in the first half of the 13th century and served for a long time as a residential tower.

4 Zumdorf: Switzerland's smallest village

Situated between Realp and Hospental, Zumdorf is the smallest village in Switzerland. After an avalanche in 1851, many of the surviving residents moved to Hospental and by 1900 the village had completely died. Today it is inhabited again – by just four people.

5 Oberalp Pass
lighthouse

The Oberalp Pass lighthouse was built as a symbol of the source of the Rhine, which is found in the Oberalp region. It is a small replica of the lighthouse found in Rotterdam, at the mouth of the Rhine.

6 Tremola road

The historic Tremola road on the Ticinese side of the Gotthard Pass is an impressive sight. With more than 20 hairpin bends, the cobblestone road snakes its way up the mountainside. Back in its early days, the coaches of the Gotthard Post would have driven along here.

7 Dazio Grande and Piottino Gorge

In 1561, canton Uri built a customs house in the Piottino Gorge. The Dazio Grande continued to serve as a customs office until the opening of the Gotthard railway in 1882. The old customs house and the historic gorge path were restored and opened to the public.

8 The castles of Bellinzona

South of Biasca lies the capital of the canton of Ticino. A visit to the old town is well worth the effort. Its three castles, listed as a UNESCO World Heritage Site, are an imposing reminder of times gone by.

1 Göschenalp

From Göschenen, the road leads through an idyllic valley and then up to Göschenalp. Make your way around the turquoise waters of the reservoir on a four-hour hike and enjoy breathtaking views over a wild landscape of mountains and glaciers. Discover lots of interesting facts about nature and the climate on the Hörpfad trail.

3 James Bond 'Goldfinger' curve

In 1964, the Furka Pass was the setting for a scene from the James Bond film Goldfinger. The sprawling bend on the canton Uri side of the pass took centre stage and is known today as the James Bond Goldfinger curve.

2 Four springs trail

Discover the water tower and the meteorological barrier of Europe on the four springs trail. Hike to the four sources of the Rhine, Reuss, Ticino and Rhone rivers, which flow off to all points of the compass. The Alpine hiking trail is divided into five daily stages.

4 Ice grotto in the Rhone Glacier

Not far from the Furka Pass road lies an ice grotto that has been carved anew into the glacier every year since 1870. An observation platform opens up on to an impressive view of the Rhone Glacier.

5 Gletschboden nature trail

An exciting half-hour hike through the approach to the Rhone Glacier. At six stops along the circular trail, you can find information about moraines from different glacial periods, pioneer plants, dynamics of a glacial river, animals in and around the stream, wet zones and moorland.

6 Hinterfeld Alp

Hinterfeld Alp is situated in the wild, beautiful landscape of the Meiental at 1,664 m a.s.l. It can be reached by car from the Susten Pass road, or by foot on the superb hiking path along the old Susten trail.

7 Urnerboden: Switzerland's largest Alpine pasture

Urnerboden is home to the largest pasture in Switzerland and, according to many, is the most beautiful. In any case, the broad plateau is a paradise for nature-lovers, and the outstanding hiking trails are a joy to discover, whether your pace is sporty or a little more relaxed.

More info and links online

For further links and even more experiences, see: www.faszination-alpenpaesse.ch

1 Gemstock

From the summit station, situated at 2961 m a.s.l, you can enjoy a stunning panorama taking in more than 600 peaks. The station can be reached easily by cable car. Or, if you prefer, you can get in touch with nature on a hike. A whole range of possibilities are on offer, from geocaching to themed trails through protected forests to demanding Alpine hikes over the Gloggentürmli to the Gotthard.

2 The Glacier Express: the slowest express train in the world

A journey on the Glacier Express from St Moritz via Andermatt to Zermatt (or the reverse) is guaranteed to be unforgettable. The panoramic carriages offer unrestricted views of jagged rock faces, unspoilt forests, deep gorges, gentle plains, strange rock formations, crystal-clear mountain lakes and traditional mountain villages.

Operating hours

Not all railway lines operate a continuous service. Be sure to check operating times and schedules in advance.

3 Furka-Bergstrecke steam railway

Discover nostalgia, mechanics and nature. On the Furka-Bergstrecke steam railway, you travel through a spectacular mountain landscape: beautifully restored vintage trains make the journey from Realp to Oberwald (or vice versa) in about two hours.

4 Cable cars to Lake Arni

The Arni reservoir can be reached in just a few minutes by taking the cable car from Amsteg or Intschi. A pleasant circular trail takes you around the lake's picturesque setting. There are plenty of benches to relax on along the shore, by picnic areas and through the idyllic pine forest.

5 Tgom Alp nostalgic cable car

The cable car, which was built in 1957, leaves from Sedrun and heads up to Tgom Alp, a vantage point that offers a spectacular view into the distance. It seems as if Tgom was custom made for hiking enthusiasts and sightseers. Hike through a charming Alpine landscape and take a break in one of the deck-chairs on the terrace at Tgom.

6 The Gelmerbahn: Europe's steepest funicular railway

A journey on the Gelmerbahn means guaranteed thrills. With parts of the ascent reaching a gradient of 106%, it's the steepest funicular railway in Europe. Once you arrive at the summit station, a relaxed hike around the turquoise waters of Lake Gelmer is strongly recommended.

1 Church of St Peter and St Paul, Andermatt

This beautifully appointed Catholic church is the most important in the Ursental. Built in 1602, it was further developed at the end of the 17th century by Bartholomäus Schmid in his typical style. It features a splendid baroque interior with an ornate high altar.

3 The Benedictine monastery in Disentis

The foundation of Disentis monastery goes back 1,400 years, making it the oldest Benedictine monastery north of the Alps. Its rich cultural heritage means a visit is a must: be sure to see the baroque monastery, the museum with its historic art treasures, and stop for a break at the Stiva Sogn Placi bistro.

4 The Goms baroque valley

Many of the churches and chapels in Goms feature baroque altars. The creators of these works of art came from local families; for example, the Ritz family. Johann Ritz in particular was a formative influence on the art of carving, and was known even beyond the borders of Valais, in cantons Uri and Graubünden.

2 The church of St Gallus in Wassen

The little church of Wassen is known far and wide. Travelling by train, you see it approach three times. This is thanks to the two helical tunnels that run below and above the town. A visit to the church is well worth it – three baroque altars can be found inside.

5 Way of the cross, Biasca

The way of the cross in Biasca follows a path through a chestnut forest and passes 14 small chapels. At the end, you reach a bridge from which the Santa Petronilla waterfalls can be admired.

1 Yaks on the Gotthard

The yak is an animal whose origins lie in the Himalayas, but it is also bred in the Andermatt Holiday Region. Yak meat has a mild taste and is very rich in protein. Yak products can be bought directly from the breeders themselves. The dried meat is particularly highly recommended.

3 Ryys und Boor

This traditional meal from canton Uri was originally a Lenten dish, and was mentioned in a cookbook as early as the middle of the 18th century. Still popular today, the main ingredients of the dish, which is similar to risotto, are rice (Ryys) and leek (Boor).

5 Valais rye bread

Anyone travelling through the upper Goms and planning to stop for a picnic should make sure they pick up some of this rye bread. More than 60 bakeries in Valais carry the AOP seal of quality, which assures the traditional production of this sourdough bread.

2 Caseificio del Gottardo: Cheese museum and dairy

At Caseificio del Gottardo in Airolo, cheese production is the first thing on everyone's mind. In the demonstration dairy, you get the chance to follow each individual step in the production of 'Gottardo' and 'Tremola' cheeses. A shop sells a large selection of local dairy products.

4 Capuns, a Graubünden speciality

The canton of Graubünden has a number of culinary specialities to offer, such as the traditional Capuns. It consists of a dough rolled up in a chard leaf with meat and herbs.
